How well did published planet-transit predictions hold up?

ExoClock's November 2025 forecasts: 2,185 accepted TESS timings from 151 planets

Predictions issued
November 2025

Main test locked
before data access

Timings measured
after lock, own code

Accepted times scored range width + misses

150 of 151 planets
all accepted timings within 26.4 minutes

1 planet missed by hours HR 858 b: about 6 hours early on all 16 accepted timings Neighbour was hours late on a separate published timetable

≈1 minute

typical miss across 2,185 accepted timings

91%, not 95%

inside 95% timing ranges,
averaged over planets

Open table

predictions + accepted timings to test better forecasts

Ranges include timing uncertainty. Widening's score benefit: inconclusive.